

Gravity Fed Ball Tracks

For resorts, zoos, museums, malls and other attractions

Gravity pulls at 9.8 meters per second squared, and that's all a Nine8 ball track needs to operate. Participants drop a wooden ball at the top and watch it roll, spin, drop, and race to the finish.

Players roll for points or just for fun. The whole group gathers around to watch, and one run is never enough.

Toddlers, teens, parents, and grandparents all play together. If you can drop a ball, you can join in from the very first roll.

A Revenue Stream That Rolls

Every track runs on signature wooden balls, and every ball is a sale. Guests buy the balls to play and take them home as souvenirs.

Sell them individually, bundle them into admission, or package them with other merchandise.

Brand the balls for your venue or create special occasion balls for repeat purchases.

Case Study:

Mira's Acorn Run Owl Creek Landing Virginia Beach, VA

Mira's Acorn Run is a nine-track wooden ball course inspired by the European Kugelbahn tradition, set in the forest.

Added in 2026, the Mira's Acorn Run activity at Owl Creek Landing has been a hit, even during construction!

"We watched people stop and start playing on each hole as it was being built, long before the course was finished."

Seeing that kind of excitement take shape hole by hole made it clear this was going to be something special."

Bahman Azarm, founder and CEO of Owl Creek Landing and designer of Mira's Acorn Run.

Each track is built from its own mix of stone, corrugated metal, pipe, and reclaimed wood, so every run looks and plays a little differently.

Guests go head to head with a friend, keep score on a scorecard, or simply roll at their own pace. Think pinball meets mini-golf, tucked into a coastal forest.

Over 50% of visitors to Owl Creek Landing purchase a ball.

Make It Yours

Animal tracks for a zoo. Alpine courses for summer on the mountain. Bright seasonal designs for a mall. Hands-on physics for a science center. Every Nine8 course can be themed to fit your visitors and your brand.

Launch with as few as three tracks and expand as your visitors and your numbers grow. Open the full nine-track course on day one, or phase it in on your schedule and budget.
